Some of the walking experiences are:

The Dalrymple Gap Walking Track.

Following the route of an historic road, this track crosses the Cardwell Range at Dalrymple Gap, winding through forests and across beautiful streams in the Wet Tropics World Heritage Area.

There are also three walking tracks in the Wallaman Falls Section of the Wet Tropics Great Walk. Each track has been given a language name by the Traditional Owners, the Warrgamaygan Aboriginal people. These three tracks are only for the experienced bush walker and take 2 to 3 days to traverse.

The Buujan Quiinbiira (Boo-jun quin bee-rr-ar)

This walk starts at Wallaman Falls and winds its way through open forests and past palm-filled gullies before crossing the Herbert River to reach the Yamanie pick-up point.

The Djagany (Jar-gar-nee) walk

Starting at Wallaman Falls, the Djagany (Jar-gar-nee) walk follows an old forestry track through she-oaks, open forest and rainforest. Cool, tranquil creek crossings provide a welcome respite from the heat on your way to the Henrietta gate pick-up point.

The Gugigugi (Goo-ji-goo-ji)

This walk starts at the Henrietta gate pick-up point travelling through open forest and lush creek crossings. This walk crosses the Herbert River before reaching the Yamanie pick-up point.

The Spectacular Blencoe Falls

Provides a gateway to the Wet Tropics Great Walk. With 110 km of walking opportunities, including short and overnight walks, there is something for everyone.
